

Hosted Check Processing Services

Let us manage the system headaches for you! Our clients still capture, balance and process transactions as they would with an in-house system-- they're just using our OSI ISCHECK™ system instead of worrying with their own. Our banks enjoy the savings and flexibility of in-house, while leaving the systems management headaches to us-- it's your operation, you're just using our system.

Attach your sorters, branch scanners and printers to our OSI system at Hogan Financial Systems — we'll manage the technical aspects for you — you still capture, balance and print statements.

About Hogan

Hogan Financial Systems, Inc. is a provider of disaster recovery services and item processing solutions. Since 1998, we've stood ready for over 70 banks in the event of a disaster declaration.

When we say we are a "partnership you can count on", we mean that you can expect us to be at your side during a disaster. Unlike generic disaster recovery services, we don't just introduce you to a room full of generic computer equipment and say, "it's all yours!" Instead, it is our job to help you to recover your system and make it operational on our systems.

Since 2004, our client banks have enjoyed our hosted item processing service, which relieves them of the headaches and burden of managing a check image processing system – our clients utilize our system instead, yet still operate as an in-house bank. We'll take care of system capacity, storage, backup, software updates and vendor relations – your focus is processing your checks and statements. This hosting service can include your core system management as well – just ask us about how this can benefit your bank.
